

An Etymology Quiz

By Vinod Hariharan
IQL

31/10/2008

An IQL Presentation

Question 1

With what would one refer to such sentences?

- "Three cheers for our queer old dean!"
- "The Lord is a shoving leopard."
- "A well-boiled icicle"

Clue!!

Question 2

When translated to Latin, it means “little mouse”.

Which constituent of the human body am I referring to?

Question 3

- Which word for a kind of clothing comes from the Urdu for “dusty”, and was itself derived from a Persian word meaning “dust”

Question 4

- This is a phrase taken from the Chinese language. It now means “excessively enthusiastic”, “overzealous”. It entered the American vernacular when it was picked up by then Major Evans Carlson (United States Marine Corps).
- What’s the phrase?

Question 5

- This picture is a visualisation of a well-known phrase in English. What it is?

31/10/2008

An IQL Presentation

Question 6

- _____ is an industrialized system of producing meat, eggs, and milk in large-scale facilities where the animal is treated as a machine. Some of the characteristics of a factory farm include intensive crowding of animals, trimming of birds' beaks, cutting pigs' tails, force-feeding of ducks, injecting artificial growth hormones, restricting mobility, etc. It is also known as “Confined Animal Feeding Operation”
- Fill in the blanks.

Question 7

- What word germinated in the English language from the works and philosophy of the dude below, which mainly emphasised on mechanistic interpretations ?

31/10/2008

An IQL Presentation

Question 8

What it is called? (refer to the circled area)

31/10/2008

An IQL Presentation

Question 9

- Connect with one word.

Question 10

Connect the 2 pictures and come up with a phrase:

31/10/2008

An IQL Presentation